

KING HANGED TO-DAY

Protesting his Innocence he Walked Calmly to the Death Trap—Some events of his life

Charles King was hanged this morning at Fort Saskatchewan at 7 o'clock for the murder of Edward Hayward on the 18th of September, 1904.

Father Jan was with the prisoner on Friday evening, when Sheriff Robertson, accompanied by Inspector Strickland, entered to read the death warrant. He listened calmly, as to one reading about a tale that he had already heard, showing no feeling at all, apparently not realizing that all hope of a reprieve was passed. The man who had left home at the age of twelve years, spending his life on the ranches and in the mines of Utah, Idaho, Kansas and Montana, was intellectually an infant, no finer feelings ever having been stirred and knowing naught of the love of parents, friends or home, he was prepared to meet his fate without complaint or whimper. He had never received any religious instruction but claimed to be a Catholic when arrested because he had while undergoing treatment in a Kansas City hospital, listened to the religious teachings of the sisters. Father Jan did not remain with him all night as he would not accept the faith and showed clearly he did not wish to have any further religious discussion. He gave the good father a message to send to relatives at Mount Pleasant, Utah.

Beautifully clear, and with the first suggestion of the coming winter in the air adding a quickening touch to the stolid pulse and awakening a joy in life that could not be withheld, Charles King awakened in his prison home to see the last sunrise that he would ever behold. He had slept well, and at 6 o'clock sat down to a hearty breakfast of poached eggs, salmon cutlet, cheese, coffee and toast, which he had calmly ordered the previous evening. Under sentence of death for four months, he had been a model prisoner, liked by the death watch, quiet and wanting little, and now that his end had come the R.N. W. M. Police guard showed their sympathy for him in numerous ways, hoping to make his last moments as pleasant as possible.

Promptly at 6.30 he was taken from the guard house and the procession, composed of Sheriff Robertson, accompanied by Major Strickland in his capacity as jailor, led, followed by King and Father Jan, with a policeman on either side and one in the rear. Jail Surgeon Dr. Aylen and Provost Rockwell came next, while the coroner, coroner's jury and others whose presence was necessary, completed the company. Winding through the orderly array of buildings that comprise the Fort, the melancholy procession arrived at the driving shed, above which in the carpenter's shop, the scaffold was erected. Father Jan led the condemned man into a room for a last few words and soon Radcliffe knocked at the door and announced to King that he had come for him. In the moment's pause that ensued King, speaking in a low, steady voice said: "I do not know what you are hanging me for, I am an innocent man—God knows that I am an innocent man. I have nothing on my mind. I would not have that crime on my mind for killing him." He arose and walked calmly to the trap, standing motionless with downcast eyes, while Radcliffe hastily bound his legs, put on the white cap, and adjusted the noose. Father Jan repeated the Lord's Prayer, King following in a clear low voice. "Deliver us" he said as the sheriff gave the signal, Radcliffe sprang the trap and he was hurled into eternity.

Death was instantaneous and painless; his neck was broken and when the doctors reached the body the pulse had ceased to beat. The body was placed in a rough coffin, face downward, hands behind, underneath them the death warrant was placed, then three prisoners bore the remains to the southwest corner of the Fort enclosure, where it lies beside the remains of Bullock, who was hanged in 1902. The earth was levelled and not even a mound remains to mark the spot.

The crime for which Chas. King this morning suffered the extreme penalty of the law was the murder of Edward Hayward on the Sucker Creek Indian reserve near Lesser Slave Lake just at year ago. This month, King was twice sentenced for the crime. His preliminary hearing was held before Inspector Worsley in Edmonton in February last.

He was sent up for trial before Supreme court and being found guilty was sentenced by Judge Harvey to be hanged on May 10. Owing to a legal technicality a new trial was ordered by the Full Court. The second trial took place before Judge Scott in June last, and being again found guilty King was for the second time sentenced to suffer for his crime on August 31. The date of the execution was, however, postponed until today.

The beginning of the investigation which led finally to the condemnation of King was when an Indian lad on the reserve noticed that "the white man's dog" would not follow him and remarked this to others of the tribe. The white man referred to was King and the dog a small collie which he claimed belonged to him. This fact aroused the suspicions of the Indians and they communicated with Sgt. Anderson, the R. N. W. M. P. officer in charge of the far-off northern post. With Constable Love Sgt. Anderson began inquiries and found that King and another man had camped on the reserve the preceding night, but that the second man had not been seen during the following day. King told the police the other man was a stranger whom he had overtaken on the road and who after spending the night with him had left for Sucker Creek. Couriers were sent thither, but no trace of the missing man could be found. In the meantime the camping place of the pair was searched and in the ashes of an unusually large fire were found what were believed to be fragments of human bones and flesh. A nearby slough was examined and in it were found several articles which were afterwards proven to have belonged to Edward Hayward.

King was accordingly arrested and brought to Edmonton. A large number of Indians from the reserve, who had acted as police in the search of the slough and the camp fire and who had seen the two men together on the evening preceding Hayward's disappearance were brought down as witnesses and gave evidence at the preliminary and at the trial in the Supreme court. The supposed remains found in the camp fire were sent to Prof. Primrose of Toronto, and he also was present at the trials in supreme court, where his evidence went to corroborate the case of the prosecution. A large number of residents of the city also gave evidence of having seen the prisoner and Hayward together in the city some time previous to their appearance at Lesser Slave Lake. The brother of the missing man was also brought over from England to identify the articles found in the slough.

The theory of the crown, as revealed by the evidence produced, was that King and Hayward came to Edmonton together last summer and here outfitted for a prospecting trip to the Peace River country, that they journeyed together to the Indian Reserve on the Sucker Creek near Lesser Slave Lake, where they camped over night early in September and that King shot his companion and buried the body in the camp fire. Local business men readily recognized from a photograph produced by Edward Hayward, as the man they had seen in the company of King in the city; Indian witnesses from the reserve identified the photographs as that of the man they had seen with King at Lesser Slave Lake; Chas. Hayward identified articles found in the slough as having belonged to his brother and Dr. Primrose gave evidence supporting the contention of the crown that the remains found in the slough were those of a human being. The scientist, the policeman, the business man and the native were thus united in weaving the net which enclosed the prisoner.

Komura a Sick Man—Japanese Officials Gratified at New Treaty with Great Britain

Winnipeg, Sept. 30.—Baron Komura, Japanese ambassador to the peace conference, baron Kaneko, special representative of the Emperor of Japan in the U. S. along with secretaries and officials of Japan who were at the Portsmouth conference, passed through Winnipeg last night on their way to catch the steamer Empress of India at Vancouver on Monday for the Flowery Kingdom. Baron Komura was ill with fever, but his secretary Mr. Honda when seen said "Baron Komura regrets very much, that he was unable to accept the invitation of the Canadian Government. It was imperative for him to go home, besides he is very unwell". In answer to a question about the new Japanese-British treaty, Mr. Honda expressed great pleasure over its being signed. "It is a guarantee of peace in the East. The Baron is returning having accomplished two great things, and with two treaties instead of one." The party numbers eleven persons.

ROSES IN ALBERTA

R. Easton of Clover Bar brought in beautiful bouquet of flowers to the Bulletin yesterday. Several rose bushes in the bouquet as well as phlox, sweet peas, snapdragons, pansies, white roses, asters and French Marigold. The bushes from which the roses were taken are still blooming vigorously and loaded with buds. Some red rose bushes have the second growth of buds for the season and with a few days more fine weather will be in second bloom. The light frosts which have occurred have damaged none of the flowers to any degree. Roses blooming in the open during the closing days of September is a tribute to Alberta's climate needing no comment.

MAKING WAR UPON ITS OWN CITY

The assault of the Conservative press on the Grand Trunk Pacific, as exemplified in an article in part reproduced a few days since from the Calgary Herald is based on the ground that the Grand Trunk Pacific line will traverse what that press is pleased to call the "territory" of the Canadian Pacific Railway and compete with that railway for the carrying business of that district. In assuming this attitude of hostility to railway competition the advocates of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company are not only attacking the proposal to introduce effective railway competition into the province of Manitoba, but in accepting the underlying principle or lack of principle, are waging war also against the introduction of effective railway competition in Alberta.

One of the primary purposes of the people of Canada in sanctioning the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific was to free the western country from the position it had so long occupied as the peculiar and exclusive "territory" of the C. P. R. The only means by which this purpose can be thoroughly accomplished is by the construction throughout the west of branch lines, tapping every district of these provinces and connecting them with the main trunk line from ocean to ocean. In attacking the principle of railway competition the Conservative press is pledging itself to oppose the construction of this system of branch lines and is thus lending its services for the maintenance of the absolute dominance of the C. P. R. in defiance of the mandate of the Canadian people.

Of all points in the Western Provinces which stand to profit by the introduction of competition by the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific and its branches none has more vital interests than Calgary. The city of Calgary owes its development and its condition today in an unusually large measure to the fact that it is and has been for many years a railway junction and its comparative advancement to the fact that it was the only point in Alberta from which branches left the main line of the C. P. R. for the country north and south of the main line. All that the intersection of the two C. P. R. lines could do for Calgary's advancement and commercial expansion has been done. It must therefore be apparent to the people of Calgary, that the benefits which have come to that city by reason of its location at the cross-roads must be multiplied by the convergence of more railways upon that city. More than that; the people of Calgary understand quite well that there is a limit beyond which their present railway facilities cannot advance them and that the only means of securing a continuance of the development which railways bring to a city is by the building of new lines of railway to their city.

While Calgary has the C. P. R. running four ways from the city, Calgary has not the benefit of railway competition, and has no immediate prospect of securing railway competition save by the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific. That the people of Calgary appreciate to the full the benefits to be derived from such competition was plainly revealed some months since when the president of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company visited that city. He was duly waited upon by the representative bodies of the city and his announcement that a well-equipped branch of the G. T. P. would be built to Calgary was heralded by the Calgary press with "scare-headers" and every manifestation of satisfaction.

When, therefore, the Calgary Herald heads the Conservative press of Alberta in an onslaught upon the principle of effective railway competition, it is attacking the foundations on which the hope of Calgary rests and is making war upon the future of its own city.

TRIED TO SUICIDE

Calgary, Sept. 28.—A patient in the Holy Cross Hospital, named McIlwraith, who has been suffering extreme pain for several months from the effects of having had his feet badly frozen last winter, attempted to do away with himself Monday night.

The sisters on night duty on the men's flat discovered the would-be suicide in time to prevent him from severing his jugular with a razor. The rash he succeeded in making being speedily fixed up by Dr. MacDonald.

As the unfortunate man has declared his intention of making a more successful attempt at the first opportunity, it has been deemed advisable to have him removed to the Mounted Police Infirmary.

Lloydminster Progressing

Rev. T. E. Lloyd, well known as the clergyman of the Church of England, who accompanied the Barr colony to Lloydminster and who has remained with them from that time to the present, was in the city last week, returning from the east, where he attended the various sessions of the general synod of the Church of England in Quebec.

Being a devoted and painstaking pastor, a public-spirited and philanthropic citizen, and an effective public speaker. During his stay in Winnipeg he was interviewed by a Free Press reporter, and was asked for information regarding the progress and advancement made by the British people settled in the district, of which Lloydminster is the centre. Mr. Lloyd immediately began to speak of the hopeful conditions existing in the Britannia colony, and in the course of his remarks he made a most vigorous attack on the report made by Mr. Mayor after his visit to the west.

"The value of the report made by Prof. Mayor," said Mr. Lloyd, "depends on the nature of his qualifications to prepare it and the extent of his special knowledge of the western country. I have no wish or desire to disparage what Prof. Mayor has written, but the fact remains that he is not a specialist on the subject of which he writes, and had not extensive, exact and full information regarding the subject, which he treated. A new English air Mayor for many years, and is the recipient of political economy in Toronto university. He came to the west and made certain observations in a most rapid going-travelling manner, and secured such information as a traveler could get passing through this country in that manner. As an illustration of his method of securing information, I might instance our own colony. In the Britannia colony we have 4,000 people, scattered over 4,000 square miles. During the past two years I have been constantly driving through this territory in all directions, and I still feel unacquainted with its possibilities. If I, after two years' time, still feel that I am not acquainted with the country, what possibility is there, that an outsider, who spends a day or two in the country, during wet weather, could form any adequate idea regarding it."

"There are men in Western Canada who do know from personal investigation in various parts of the western country what the wheat growing possibilities of Western Canada really are. These men have been here for years in the country and their observations have extended over many seasons. They know the west and know approximately how much wheat land there is."

"And yet even these men, the best informed men in the west, do not know accurately what the possibilities of the future are. Many years ago it was doubted whether any wheat could be grown in Western Canada. I remember very well when I came west with the Queen's Own Regiment from Toronto in 1882 that even as late as that date there was a great deal of skepticism regarding the value of western lands for wheat growing purposes, and when we got into the far west, somewhere near the spot where we are located now, it was deemed that the land would never be used for any purpose whatever but for ranching, and even for this purpose it was regarded by some as of little value. Ever since that time, the area of land which is considered suitable for wheat growing has been increased, and large districts which were then thought to be of little consequence are now growing and shipping millions of bushels annually. When we went into the Saskatchewan country we were constantly told that nothing but oats and barley could be raised there, that the country was incapable of raising wheat. Yet we already have this in many fields of the finest wheat in the world, and there is no doubt in my mind that large quantities of this grain will be raised there every year hereafter."

"On the way to the city I had the pleasure to meet the distinguished Bishop of Athabasca, Bishop Reeves, and I was told by him that there were hundreds of people during the present year, going northward into the Beaver country, the Smoky River country and the Spirit river country."

This country, the bishop declares, to be one of the finest tracts in Canada, and it is believed that before many years the diocese of Athabasca, now entirely inhabited by Indians, will be a white man's diocese. How far north population may yet go on the continent, and how far north wheat may be raised, no one in Canada knows, and no one will know until the experiment has actually been tried. Those who are familiar with existing conditions in northern Europe and Asia, see perfectly well, that the northern limit has by no means been reached in any portion of western Canada.

"Regarding the feeling in our own colony, I had an astonishing illustration within the last few weeks. Some months ago I had some correspondence with certain English people, who contemplated coming to the country. They wrote to me, stating that they expected to arrive next May, and asking what the chances would be to secure homesteads at that time. I replied that if they came as late as next May the chances of securing a homestead would be small. Then they wrote to me saying that they were prepared to buy land and that they would be glad to buy out any of our people who wished to sell. On receiving this letter, I made it known throughout the colony that there was a buyer for any of our farms, and from 1,000 people I received but two replies. One of these settlers was willing to sell on account of some personal domestic reason, such as might lead to a sale in any country, and the other was a case of a man who had first gone in for wheat growing and had afterwards decided to go into dairying on a different location and who stated, that if he got a satisfactory offer, he would sell one of his places. In view of the fact that we have a considerable number of young men who are not so bound to the soil as married men might be, I consider this a most remarkable showing. It is perfectly clear that our people are satisfied and are contented to remain where they are.

"Professor Mavor also declares in favor of the Doukhobor as against the English settler. Now I have no doubt that for the first year or two years, the Doukhobor has the advantage over the Englishman. The Doukhobor is born with a plow in his hand and knows agriculture thoroughly. For the first few years, therefore, I admit, the Doukhobors have it, but I think there can be little doubt that at the end of ten years the British settlement would be of larger value to the Dominion than the Doukhobor. I do not disparage these excellent settlers, I simply say that other things being equal, it is better to have British people in Canada than Russian people.

"I think it a great thing to be able to say for these colonists from Great Britain, that after three years they are still there. Many colonies have come to Canada during the past and have disappeared. We are still together, and there are no indications that our colony is to cease. On the contrary, it is daily becoming more fully established.

MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE AT LETHBRIDGE

(Lethbridge News.)
The Hon. Sydney Fisher, Minister of Agriculture, visited Lethbridge yesterday. He came in from the east on Sunday night's regular train and was met by Mr. Magrath. On Monday morning he went with Dr. Ruthven, the Dominion veterinary surgeon, to visit the quarantine. In the afternoon he went out with the board of trade president, Supt. Begin and Mr. Magrath to inspect the proposed site of an experimental farm near Capt. McDonald's place, a mile south-east of town. Visits were also made to a number of surrounding farms and the minister expressed himself as highly pleased with what he saw.

In the evening a meeting of agricultural society directors and others was held in the fire hall, when an address was presented to the minister and various matters of interest to the district were discussed. Vice-President Fairfield occupied the chair and after a few introductory words, Secretary Hamilton read an address in which the minister was warmly welcomed to Lethbridge. Reference was made to the agricultural development which he had witnessed during his day's work in the country and his attention was drawn to the necessity of the establishing of an experimental farm under irrigation conditions. The address, which was short and to the point, concluded by complimenting the minister upon the valuable assistance his department had rendered agriculturists all over the Dominion during his incumbency in office and extended him a cordial invitation to visit Lethbridge as often in the future as possible.

The honorable gentleman after expressing the pleasure with which he had looked forward to his visit to the West and his appreciation of the possibilities, said he understood there was deep interest here in the establishment of experimental work in the West. The original intention was to have one central farm—that at Ottawa—and several branches to experiment under the conditions prevailing in the different provinces. This intention, as followed out, has proven to be a good one, but there was no farm in Alberta, and when the decision was arrived at to have two provinces created in the North West, it was recognized that one must be established in Alberta to follow out original intentions. While the farm at Indian Head was adequate to local requirements, it was not sufficient to serve the larger provinces. As a result of consultations with Dr. Saunders, it had been decided to establish smaller stations in other parts, and at the last session of Parliament an increased vote had been asked for this purpose. He had asked Dr. Saunders to suggest most favorable locations for these stations, and before leaving he had heard from Dr. Saunders, who wished him to visit Lethbridge, as one of the suggested locations. He had come here direct, and he thought the possibilities were that one of the stations would be located in the neighborhood of Lethbridge. (Applause.) He could not as yet say anything positively. He had driven around the district and was surprised and delighted with what he saw in cultivation. He was here with Hon. Mr. Laurier in 1895 and had no conception or anticipation of seeing such successful agricultural development. It was of the utmost importance to all farmers here that some thorough system of scientific experimenting should be carried on on irrigated lands. One thing that caused him to speak a little more favorably of the Lethbridge district was that under the lead of the Irrigation Company—pioneers in this work—very rapid development had been made and success assured. His idea would be in favor of establishing a station here, but it would be only fair to see other portions before making any decision.

He spoke of the difference in conditions which would be attached to work here and difficulties likely to be met with, but nevertheless he felt it was his duty to undertake it, and he would look to members of the Agricultural Society to be advisers and advisers in the task. (Applause.)

Hon. Mr. Fisher said he believed with water we could grow anything, as the soil was excellent. He believed every canal and ditch should be lined with trees, and urged this should be done. The roots would hold the banks, and trees break the winds and help conserve moisture. With irrigation this district had immense possibilities. He was astonished to see the fruit grown by Father Vanier. One variety of apple was very fine, as good as any grown in the east. The plums also were good. He also noticed some good orange trees. He was very much astonished at the crops of alfalfa he had seen, and had no doubt it would be largely grown as it was nutritious, grew luxuriantly and fertilized the soil. Judging from the stubble there had evidently been some heavy crops of wheat and oats grown.

Hon. Mr. Fisher then spoke of the outbreak of malarial fever amongst horses and asked for the cooperation of all horse owners in the attempt being made to eradicate it. The outbreak was a very serious one, and drastic measures would stamp it out. The Government would furnish a number of animals destroyed. Along with his extensive address, he was seriously considering the advisability of prohibiting the importation of horses from several parts of the United States where the disease was known to exist.

Pharaoh Cigar

is made are ideal.

We have a contented little community of our own, that is not worried by outside conditions. The wholesome, country-town life that we live, fills in the quality of our work.

Every employee in my factory has his whole heart in his work. From the oldest workman, who started with me when I had a small room for a factory, a big bunch of enthusiasm and a high idea of quality, down to the lad who just joined us the other day, every one is putting the best that is in him into his work.

Under such conditions it is no wonder that my Pharaoh is the best ten cent smoke on the market. We are all working with the one object—to produce the best cigar possible.

I go to Cuba every year and buy the best tobacco produced. I know that every leaf that comes to my factory is right. My workmen see that every roll they give it will help make it a perfect, even-burning smoke. It is a combination that's hard to beat.

None genuine unless branded "Pharaoh." Price 10 cents.

—An idea of the tremendous traffic over the trail between Edmonton and Fort Saskatchewan can be obtained from the remark of Major Strickland of the R. N. W. M. P. that he counted one hundred and seventy teams on the trail when driving from the Fort to this city one morning recently.

—Sir Frederick Borden and General Lake were driven around the city Thursday to see the proposed rifle range. They visited the old range on the Great Flat; the flat across the river from there belonging to J. Omand; the present range; a site on the Gallagher-Hull property farther east; and river lots 25 and 26 east of the new jail. In an unofficial statement, General Lake told the committee to thoroughly weigh the value of the different locations, and that report would be considered by the military council when taking action.

—Winnipeg Free Press: Damaged and over-ripe fruit is receiving considerable attention just now as a possible cause of a good deal of the typhoid in the city. It has been noticed before that districts supplied with every sanitary improvement have sometimes been affected while streets with neither water nor plumbing and occupied chiefly by foreigners have been practically free and this is the case in the north end just now. If there is anything in the fruit theory it might easily account for the disease finding its way into sanitary homes, and the matter is certainly one which should have attention. At this season of the year there is a large quantity of cheap fruit sold by foreign peddlars, and citizens would be wise to be careful that only perfectly sound fruit is eaten. The city health department is watching the fruit being peddled in the streets, and several barrow loads have been confiscated and destroyed.
